

U.S. District Court District of Minnesota

We're Moving

On September 30, 2005, the St. Paul Judges and court staff who currently reside in the Warren E. Burger Federal Building on Robert Street will be relocated. The Court business will be conducted nearby in interim space at 180 E. Fifth Street for up to three years. During this time, the St. Paul Courthouse will be renovated to meet the court's operational needs.

Commencing September 12, all in-custody criminal matters will be scheduled in the Minneapolis Courthouse. Please be sure to check very carefully for the exact location of your court proceeding. Feel free to call chambers staff with questions. Check the Court's website for additional information and construction photographs at www.mnd.uscourts.gov

CM/ECF

Electronic case filing will not be affected by the court's temporary move. That's the beauty of CM/ECF: You may file documents electronically from wherever, and so can we!

Address and Phone Info Effective September 30, 2005:

- All mailed correspondence must be addressed to the "old" address of 316 North Robert Street, even though we won't be there. Do not change a thing on your current address labels, even the suite numbers! Don't worry, we'll get your mail.
- The physical address of the St. Paul U.S. District Court Judges and clerk's office will be 180 E. Fifth Street. Use this address when using courier services to deliver documents or when you must appear in person. There will be a sign in front of the Burger Courthouse directing visitors to the interim courthouse just in case they forget. The interim courthouse is one block away.
- All phone numbers will remain the same.
